

HELLWORKS II

CATHEDRAL NOCTIS

BONUS

NECROPOLIS SPECIAL

Many game scenarios involve tracking the bad guys back to their nefarious lair to destroy the source of their evil powers. For Necropolis players, this may include literally cutting the heart out of their enemy's stronghold, only in this case it's actually a HEART! And just for kicks, there's an altar made of human flesh and bone. No accounting for taste, I suppose...

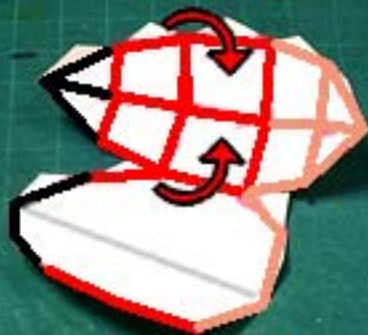

The altar is a simple box shape. Score, cut out, fold and edge the altar, then run a bead of glue along the main tab on the side and match it up to the opposite side of the altar.

Learn all about edging and other pro-tips in the tutorials section at www.worldworksgames.com

When that's dry, apply glue to the remaining tabs and close the shape.

The dark heart segments go together in several steps.

First, edge the segments. Use a pink or peach marker for the top sections, red for the middle and black for the bottom to get a more gradual look.

Next, glue together the two exterior sides of each segment.

UNTABBED

When that's dry, attach the TABBED inside section of the heart as shown.

Finally, apply glue to the remaining tabs on the heart segment and fold up the UNTABBED inside section as shown.

Repeat with the other segments.

For the heart "stalk", start by taking the two sections next to the left (or right) side and glue and fold them together as shown, taking care NOT to glue together the semi-circular tabs on the bottom.

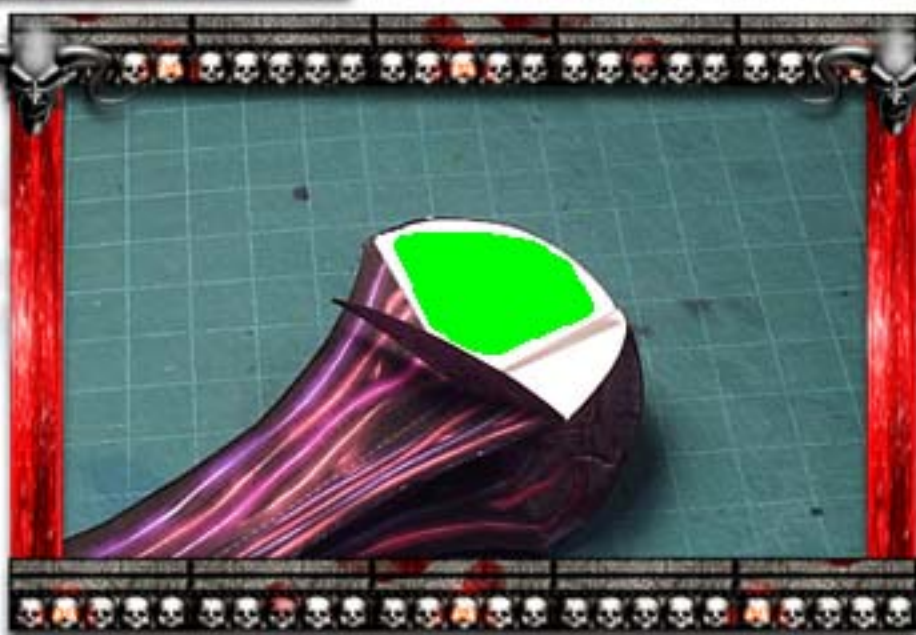

Once it's dry, carefully remove the excess cardstock from around the edge of the stalk.

Repeat this with the other inner sections and finish with the two exterior sections of the stalk.

Apply a drop of glue to the designated gluing area of one of the semi-circular tabs and fold the textured base tab over top.

Repeat this with the other base tabs.

Edge the completed stalk.

Attach the finished heart segments to the stalk. There's no specific placement, just do whatever looks best to you.

The decorative cap is optional.

Take each of the cap's inner segments and curl them around a pen or pencil, then attach them to the very top of the stalk as shown, textured side FACING INWARD.

Once dry, run a bead of glue around the cap segments and attach the skull ring as shown.

